TRACEY RARICH

Tracey wanted to protect student athletes. She graduated from the athletic training program at West Chester University and took a job at Pope John Paul II High School. On the first day of softball tryouts last year, a student collapsed. She was in cardiac arrest. Tracey jumped into action with CPR and the AED device and saved her life. Tracey is real life hero who is protecting hearts and saving lives.

CHHAYA CHAUDHARY
AND USHA NAIR
(AKA SUNSHINE PEDIATRICS)

Sunshine Pediatrics opened in 2002. The Sudmans were one of the first patients. After Simon died, something they said set the course of Simon's Heart. "Go get your hearts checked because babies just don't die." That's not common advice. It is certainly not the standard of care. The mission of Simon's Heart was guided by the curiosity and wisdom of Usha and Chhaya in January 2005. This recognition is long overdue and we are forever grateful.
